SUPPLEMENT
TO THE
EUROPEAN MAGAZINE FOR JUNE 1786.
MONTHLY CHRONICLE.

MAY 2.

THE practice of BIDDING AT WEDDINGS, as it is called, which was at a very early period univerſally practiſed amongſt the lower claſſes of the peaſantry in this kingdom, has been very lately revived in one of the northern counties, as appears from the following ſingular notice, which is copied from a provincial paper.

INVITATION.

SUSPEND, for one day, your cares and your labours;
And come to this wedding, kind friends, and good neighbours.

"Notice is hereby given, that the marriage of Iſaac Pearſon with Frances Atkinſon will be ſolemnized in due form, in the pariſh church of Lamblugh (Cumberland) on Tueſday next, the 30th of May inſtant; immediately after which the bride and bridegroom, with their attendants, will proceed to Lonefoot, in the ſaid pariſh, where the nuptials will be celebrated by a variety of rural entertainments."

Then come one and all,
At Hymen's ſoft call,
From Whitehaven, Workington, Harrington, Dean, [twixt,
Hail, Ponſonby, Blaing, and all places be-
From Egremont, Cockermouth, Barton, St. Bees. [theſe, Cint, Kinnyſide, Calder, and parts ſuch as
And the country at large may flock in—if they pleaſe.
Such ſports there will be as have ſeldom been ſeen,
Such wreſtling, and fencing, and dancing between,
And races for prizes, for frolic, and fun,
By horſes, and aſſes, and dogs, will be run;
That you'll all go home happy—as ſure as a gun.
In a word, ſuch a wedding can ne'er fail to pleaſe,
For the ſports of Olympus were trifles to theſe.
Nota bene. You'll pleaſe to obſerve that the day
Of this grand bridal pomp is the thirtieth of May,
When 'tis hop'd that the ſun, to enliven the ſight,
Like the flambeau of Hymen will deign to burn bright.

The melancholy and myſterious fate of the ſeveral gentlemen who were poiſoned at Salt-hill ſome years ago, ſuppoſed to have been by the wine they drank, is at laſt developed by the cook who then lived at the inn; and who, being on her death-bed, lately ſent for a clergyman, and to him related the following circumſtances, which ſhe ſaid lay ſo heavy on her mind that ſhe could not die without revealing them:——"That having, the preceding day, prepared a diſh, which was not called for, ſhe ſuffered it to remain in the ſtew-pan (which was of copper) till the next day, when the party alluded to dined there, and the diſh ſo kept conſtituted a part of their dinner.—That before ſhe warmed it again for that purpoſe, ſhe obſerved a large quantity of a thick greeniſh ſcum on its ſurface, but the cauſe of ſuch appearance not occurring to her at the inſtant, ſhe permitted it to be ſent to table, and the fatal effects before mentioned followed. That when told that the parties were in the agonies of death, and recollecting to have heard of the poiſonous property of copper, the unaccountable appearance of the food occurred to her mind, and ſhe began to fear that ſhe had been, inadvertently, the cauſe of that dreadful cataſtrophe. Under this impreſſion ſhe was miſerable, but declared that her only reaſon for retaining the ſecret within her own boſom, was the dread that a confeſſion would have been followed by the puniſhment inflicted on wilful murderers."

Mr. Howard, who has ſo greatly diſtinguiſhed himſelf in viſiting the priſons of this kingdom, impreſſed with the idea that he has diſcovered the means of preventing the ravages of the plague, is gone to Conſtantinople to confer with the Turks upon the ſubject, and to excite them to make experiments for ſtopping that dreadful diſorder.

3. The Gazette of this evening contains an account of the election of Knights, and the ceremony of the inveſtiture of the moſt noble order of the Garter, on Friday, of the following diſtinguiſhed perſonages, viz. their Royal Highneſſes Prince Edward (now out of the kingdom), Prince Erneſt Auguſtus, Prince Auguſtus Frederick, Prince Adolphus Frederick, his Serene Highneſs the Landgrave of Heſſe Caſſel, the Duke of Beaufort, the Marquis of Buckingham, and Earl Cornwallis (now out of the kingdom). Before the election of Knights began, the Chancellor read a new ſtatute of the order, by which it is ordained, that the order ſhall in future conſiſt of the Sovereign and twenty-five

Knights, exclusive of the sons of his Majesty, or his successors, who have been elected, or shall be elected, Knights of the same most noble order.

A fire broke out in Ratcliff-Highway, near the corner of Ratcliff-Street, when eight houses and a Dissenting Meeting-house were all consumed.

6. Last week there was a meeting of the Highland Society, for the encouragement of fisheries in the Highlands, &c. 3,000l. were immediately subscribed by eleven gentlemen present, for this particular purpose, and a much larger sum will be soon subscribed.

The sessions ended at the Old Bailey, when eight convicts received judgment of death, 49 were sentenced to be transported, 2 to be imprisoned in Newgate, 3 to be whipped and discharged, and 24 were discharged by proclamation.

7. A duel was fought near Kensington, between Lord Macartney and Major-general Stuart, of which the following is an authentic account, as transmitted to us by the seconds, Colonel Fullarton and Colonel Gordon; the former accompanying Lord Macartney, and the latter General Stuart: The place and time of meeting having been previously fixed, the parties arrived about half past four o'clock in the morning, and took their ground at the distance of twelve short paces, measured off by the seconds, who delivered each one pistol, keeping possession of the remaining arms. General Stuart told Lord Macartney, he doubted, as his Lordship was short-sighted, he would not be able to see him. His Lordship replied, "he did perfectly well." When the seconds had retired a little distance on one side, and as the parties were about to level, General Stuart observed to Lord Macartney, that his pistol was not cocked. His Lordship thanked him, and cocked. When they had levelled, General Stuart said he was ready: His Lordship answered he was likewise ready; and they both fired within a few instants of each other.

The seconds observing Lord Macartney wounded, stepped up to him, and declared the matter must rest here. General Stuart said, "This is no satisfaction;" and asked if his Lordship was not able to fire another pistol? His Lordship replied, "He would try with pleasure," and urged Colonel Fullarton to permit him to proceed; the seconds, however, declared it was impossible, and they would on no account allow it. General Stuart said, "Then I must defer it till another occasion:" On which his Lordship answered, "If that is the case, we had better proceed now: I am here in consequence of a message from General Stuart, who called upon me to give him satisfaction in my private capacity, for offence taken at my public conduct; and to evince that personal safety is no consideration with me, I have nothing personal, the General will proceed as he thinks fit." General Stuart said, it was his Lordship's personal conduct to him that he resented. The seconds then put a stop to all further conversation between the parties, neither of whom had quitted their ground; General Stuart, in consequence of his situation, having been under the necessity from the first of putting his back to a tree. The surgeons, Mr. Hunter and Mr. Home, who were attending at a little distance, were brought up by Colonel Fullarton. Colonel Gordon, in the mean time, assisted his Lordship in taking off his coat, and requested him to sit down, apprehending he might be faint through the loss of blood. Colonel Gordon then left the ground, in company with General Stuart, and an easy carriage was provided to convey his Lordship home.

"The seconds cannot help expressing, that no two persons ever met on a similar occasion, who shewed more firmness and composure; and they are happy to add, that the ball is extracted, which was lodged in Lord Macartney's right shoulder; and that there is every reason to hope for his recovery.

(Signed) W. FULLARTON.
A. GORDON."

The above singular circumstance of the General placing his back against a tree, having been left unexplained by the seconds, the following extract of Sir Eyre Coote's letter to the Secretary of State, containing the particulars of the battle of Solelore, with the late Hyder Ali, in the Carnatic, will clearly account for it. "General Stuart had the misfortune to lose his leg by a cannon shot, whilst bravely conducting the second line to the post which I had occupied at the commencement of the engagement, and on which the enemy had kept up a very severe fire: the same shot also carried away the leg of Colonel Brown, and having caused his death, deprived the Company of a very old and faithful servant, and the army of an able experienced officer."

The above duel had its rise in a transaction which took place in the East-Indies some time past, when his Lordship superseded the General and sent him to Europe.

This day ended the sale of the curiosities belonging to the late Duchess of Portland's Museum, when the celebrated Barberini vase, or antique sepulchral urn, was purchased by a gentleman for the Duke of Marlborough, at the sum of 1029l. It had cost the Duchess 1300l.—The Jupiter Serapis, cut out of green basaltes, went for 165 guineas.—The Augustus Cæsar, a Cameo Onyx, for 225 guineas.—A bible in eighteens, belonging to Queen Elizabeth, with with ſix prayers beautifully written in ſix different languages by the Queen's own hand, was knocked down for one hundred and ſix pounds!—The whole muſeum has not ſold for more than 4,546l. 14s. though the late Ducheſs ſpent more than a hundred thouſand pounds in the collection of it.

In conſequence of his Majeſty's commands, a new uniform has been made for the general officers in the army. It conſiſts of a ſcarlet coat lined with white, with blue cuffs, richly adorned with plain gold lace. The waiſtcoat and breeches white cloth, and the buttons marked with a truncheon acroſs a ſword. The general officers appeared in this dreſs, for the firſt time, on the King's birth-day.

The Nepune, Warren Haſtings, Alfred, Locko, King George, Francis, and Britannia Eaſt-Indiamen, are all ſafely arrived his month from Bengal, China, &c.

In the Warren Haſtings were brought over, as a preſent to his Majeſty from one of the Nabobs, ſix beautiful crown birds, which coſt in the Eaſt 600 guineas a pair.—They are of a moſt beautiful blue, reſembling the colour of a peacock's neck, are as large as a gooſe, and have a tuft or plume of white feathers on the top of the head which looks like hair finely powdered.

Liſt of gentlemen returned from the Preſidency of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, with the ſuppoſed quantum of fortune:

13. A Court of Aldermen was held at Guildhall, when Robert Peckham, Eſq. Alderman of the Ward of Coleman-ſtreet, in a genteel ſpeech, wherein he ſet forth a ſeries of unmerited misfortunes, and particularly one in his mayoralty by the failure of a great houſe abroad to the amount of many thouſands, whereby he was diſabled from ſupporting his ſtation, reſigned his ſaid office of Alderman. A very flattering vote of reſpect inſtantly paſſed without a diſſenting voice for his conduct in public life, and he was complimented with 200l. At the ſame time 100l. was voted to Mrs. Wooldridge, wife of Mr. Wooldridge, late Alderman, to be paid her independent of her huſband, for the ſupport of herſelf and her children.—George Mackenzie Macaulay, Eſq. is elected Alderman in the room of Mr. Peckham.

14. The poll for organiſt of St. Andrew, Holborn, in the room of the late Mr. Stanley, terminated in favour of Mr. Evance, by a majority of 103.

The coroner's inqueſt ſat on the body of Elizabeth Ham, a butcher, in Spitalfields-Market, and brought in their verdict wilful murder againſt Catherine Hughes, her ſiſter. It appeared that the deceaſed was blind, and on Saturday morning was left with a young child in her arms in the kitchen behind the ſhop; that in the abſence of the reſt of the family, her ſiſter, without any apparent provocation, with a large knife cut her ſiſter's throat, of which wound ſhe inſtantly died.

A curious inveſtigator into the ſecrets of art and nature has diſcovered a further improvement of the patent lamp, which is to maintain the ſplendor of the light with one-third leſs conſumption of oil; this, he ſays, is effected ſimply by immerſing the wick in a ſolution of common ſalt and water, and drying it before it is fixed in the lamp.

15. Was knocked down at Garraway's by Mr. Skinner, all the valuable manors of Rendelſham, Butley, and Leiſton, in Suffolk, for the ſum of 51,400l.

The bill recently paſſed for the relief of Inſolvent Debtors, is only an extenſion of the act of the 32d of his late Majeſty; that act relieved a debtor for the ſum he was in execution for, on giving up his effects after he had ſuffered twelve months impriſonment, provided ſuch debt did not exceed 100l. the preſent bill extends the ſum to 200l. but it is of little ſervice, as many much involved in debt, muſt either fly their country or be impriſoned for life.

16. A general Court of Proprietors was held at the India-Houſe, when the whole of the late proceedings of the Court of Directors and the Board of Control were diſcuſſed.

The negociation of the Court of Directors with the Miniſter for their new loan, was arraigned as a very improper proceeding without the knowledge of the proprietary.

The Court of Directors explained the abſolute neceſſity there was for this loan; and in doing that they ordered the ſtatement of their accounts to be read, by which it appeared, that, notwithſtanding their preſent neceſſities, they would, by the arrangements they had made, be able to pay all their debts, and in the year 1791 to have 6,000,000l. in their treaſury.

17. Came on to be tried at Guildhall, before Sir Francis Buller, Knt. one of the Judges of his Majeſty's Court of King's Bench, and a reſpectable Jury, a cauſe very intereſting to the public, wherein Mr. Joſeph Penny, cornfactor, of Bath, was plaintiff, and Mr. Samuel Ward, bargemaſter and cornfactor, defendant; the action was brought to recover the ſum of 142l. being the value of a quantity of oats which the plaintiff had put on board the defendant's barge at Briſtol, to be conveyed to Bath, and which were loſt in conſequence of the barge being ſunk at Briſtol bridge, occaſioned by a piece of timber brought down in the ſtream with a great freſh, in the night of the 9th of January laſt, and which ſtruck the ſaid barge ſo violent a blow as to cauſe her ſinking in a quarter of an hour after—an accident which could neither be foreſeen nor prevented. The Court and Jury were clearly of opinion that the defendant was not anſwerable for the loſs, and found a verdict in his favour.

Same day came on the long-conteſted cauſe relative to appointment of Clerk of the Arraigns at the Old Bailey, when the Jury, after about forty minutes conſideration, returned a verdict for the defendant. This deciſion veſts the above appointment in the Court itſelf, and not in the Cuſtos Rotulorum of Middleſex, which was the matter contended for.

As many contradictory accounts are circulated reſpecting ſome diamonds preſented from Mr. Haſtings to his Majeſty at Wedneſday's levee, it is neceſſary to acquaint the public, that the diamonds in queſtion are not pretended to be the gift of Madajee Scindia, the Mahratta Chief; the caſe being, that the Potentate who has the credit of having made this magnificent preſent, is the Nizam of the Decan.

Major Scott gives the following account of the above diamonds:—The Nizam ſent a Bulſe * of diamonds, ſealed up, to Bengal, directed to Mr. Haſtings, for the purpoſe of his preſenting them to the King on his arrival in England. Mr. Haſtings had ſailed for England before the diamonds arrived in Calcutta. They were therefore entruſted to the care of Capt. Church, of the 102d regiment, who took his paſſage home in the Hinchinbroke; the fame of theſe diamonds, and of their immenſe value, had gone abroad: and when the Hinchinbroke was ſunk in Bengal river, a Laſcar took advantage of the confuſion, broke open the trunks of Capt. Church, and got poſſeſſion of the bulſe—It was, however, reſcued from his hands before he had broken the ſeals, and was returned to Mr. Croſts, the agent of Mr. Johnſon, who is reſident at the Court of Nizam. Mr. Croſts ſent the diamonds to England by one of the late ſhips, addreſſed to the care of Mr. Blair, of Portland-place, who is the brother-in-law of Mr. Johnſtone. Mr. Blair handed them to Mr. Haſtings; Mr. Haſtings entruſted them to Major Scott; Major Scott delivered them to Lord Sydney; and Lord Sydney preſented them to the King.

19. Came on before Lord Loughborough, and a ſpecial jury, the trial of the action brought by the Right Hon. Charles James Fox againſt Thomas Corbett, Eſq. High Bailiff of Weſtminſter, for maliciouſly withholding a return after a clear majority of incontеſtible votes appeared on the poll in favour of Fox. The trial laſted from noon till nine in the evening. The jury retired for about forty minutes, and returned a verdict for the plaintiff with Two Thouſand Pounds damages, being the ſum expended in that buſineſs on the part of Mr. Fox. The damages were laid at 100,000l.

In the courſe of three days laſt week, the officiating clergyman at one of the pariſh churches at Birmingham, baptiſed no leſs than 125 children.

20. This day the corpſe of the late Duke of Northumberland lay in ſtate at Northumberland-houſe, in the uſual ſtyle and form of ſuch ceremonies. The decorations conſiſted of the eſcutcheons of the family arms, the inſignia of the Garter, &c. The whole formed a ſpectacle of great magnificence and ſolemnity. The room was hung with black, and ſuperbly lighted.

21. The remains of his Grace the late Duke of Northumberland were carried in grand funeral pomp from Northumberland-houſe, and interred in the family vault in Weſtminſter-Abbey. His Grace, by a Teſtamentary Paper in his own hand writing, left 1000l. to be diſtributed to the poor on the day of his funeral, viz. to thoſe of the pariſhes of the City and Liberty of Weſtminſter 700l. to thoſe at Alnwick 100l. at Werington 100l. at Sion 50l. at Stanwick 50l. Total 1000l. The money was accordingly paid to the Veſtries of the ſeveral pariſhes.

The ſame morning George Griffiths, George Woodward, William Watts, Daniel Keefe, Jonathan Harwood, and William Smith, alias Storer, were executed purſuant to their ſentences on the ſcaffold uſually erected oppoſite Newgate.

* A Bulſe of diamonds is a peculiar ſort of a package of diamonds. They are always brought home from India in a caſe, which is called a Bulſe.

Soon

Soon after the above execution, Phœbe Harris, convicted the ſeſſion before laſt of coining ſilver, was brought out at the debtors door, from whence ſhe walked to a ſtake fixed in the ground, about half way between the ſcaffold and Newgate-ſtreet. She was immediately tied by the neck to an iron bolt fixed near the top of the ſtake, and after praying very fervently for a few minutes, the ſteps on which ſhe ſtood were drawn away, and ſhe immediately became ſuſpended. The executioner, with ſome aſſiſtants, put a chain round her body, which was faſtened by ſtrong nails to the ſtake. The faggots were then piled round her, and after ſhe had hung about half an hour, the fire was kindled.

There was a General Court of Proprietors at the Eaſt India Houſe, for the purpoſe of declaring a dividend from Chriſtmas laſt to Midſummer; when four per cent. for the half year was agreed upon.

22. At a General Court of Proprietors held at the India-Houſe, after a long debate, it was reſolved, that it be recommended by that Court to the Court of Directors, to reconſider their determination relative to the price to be paid by the Company in future for freightage; and alſo to take into their conſideration the reſolutions of the Ship-owners, lately aſſembled at the London Tavern.

23. The Quakers letter of this year inſtils the nobleſt principles of morality; that paſſage which inculcates paying our full debts as ſoon as we are able, notwithſtanding any compoſition which creditors may accept of, deſerves to be written in moſt legible characters, and preſented to every bankrupt on receiving his certificate.

24 Letters from Vienna mention, that the members of the Divan had been in warm debate for great part of laſt month, in conſequence of the ſudden departure of the Ruſſian Miniſter, which was deemed by the Porte introductory to a declaration of war.

Being Midſummer-Day, a Common-Hall was held at Guildhall, for the election of Sheriffs for the year enſuing, and other officers. About one o'clock the Lord-Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen, went upon the Huſtings, with the two Sheriffs, Sanderſon and Watſon, when the Recorder opened to the Livery the buſineſs that called them together; after which all the Aldermen that had not ſerved the office, and the Commoners who had been nominated in ſeveral Mayoralties, were put up, when the ſhow of hands appeared for Charles Higgins, Eſq. Citizen and Grocer, and Edward Watſon, Eſq. Citizen and Founder; whereupon they were declared duly elected. They then proceeded to the Election of Chamberlain, when John Wilkes, Eſq. was choſen; and the Bridge-maſters and Aleconners continued as before; the Auditors were next nominated, but warm debates aroſe relative to continuing Mr. Tomlins another year, he having already ſerved three years; the principal ſpeakers were the two Sheriffs Sanderſon and Watſon, Tomlins, and Loveland. At length the Sheriffs reſolved to return ſix to the Court of Aldermen, when the Court was pleaſed to return Meſſrs. Thorn, Wilſon, Stock, and Nettleſhip; on which they were declared duly elected; but a poll was demanded for Mr. Tomlins and Mr. Loveland.

A box with a conſiderable quantity of plate belonging to Lord Berwick was ſtolen from Powell's Shropſhire waggon, while the man was baiting at Caſtle Bromwich, near Birmingham. It is ſuppoſed the villains had followed the waggon from London. Two fierce maſtiffs guarded the waggon, which it is ſuppoſed the villains found means to intoxicate. The booty appears to have been of great value.

25. The Sunday toll on the Surry ſide of Blackfriars-bridge commenced in purſuance of a late act of parliament for that purpoſe.

27. At a Court of Aldermen, George Macknenzie Macaulay, Citizen and Bowyer, was ſworn Alderman of Coleman-ſtreet Ward, in the room of Mr. Peckham, who reſigned. Charles Higgins, Eſq. elected Sheriff at the laſt Common-Hall, gave bond to take upon him the office on next Michaelmas Eve; and Edward Watſon, Eſq. Founder, elected Sheriff at the ſame time, paid 400l. and the uſual fees into the Chamber, to be excuſed from ſerving that office. John Wilkes, Eſq. elected on Saturday laſt by the Livery in Common-Hall, Chamberlain of this City, was ſworn into his office. Robert Peckham, Eſq. late Alderman, being the only candidate, was appointed the City's Juſtice in the Borough, Southwark, in the room of James Kettilby, deceaſed.

28. The three young Princes, Erneſt, Auguſtus, and Adolphus, attended by Lord Howe and General Faucett, went to Graveſend and embarked on board the Auguſta yacht for Germany.

29. A General Court of Proprietors of Eaſt-India Stock was held at the India Houſe, Leadenhall-ſtreet, for the purpoſe of balloting on the queſtion, for the Court of Directors reconſidering their reſolutions of the 17th of March and 26th of May laſt, and alſo the reſolutions of the Ship Owners, relating to the hire and freight of ſhipping. When the glaſſes were cloſed they were delivered to the Scrutineers, who made their report that there had ballotted

The

The laſt Calcutta Gazette received at the India-Houſe announces the death of Tippoo Saib.

On the 16th inſt. a man went before J. Eaſton, Eſq. Mayor of Saliſbury, and voluntarily declared, that he murdered a Drummer of the name of Jones about ſeven years ago. Since that time he had been in various employments as a Sailor, and in France, the Weſt-Indies, Ruſſia, &c. that he was loſt on board the Sampſon Man of War, lying off Plymouth, whence he and his companion John Sheppard, a native of the Soke, in Wincheſter, were lately diſcharged. He declared, that excepting this murder, he had at no time of his life done any injury to ſociety: That on Thurſday the 15th, upon the road to Saliſbury, they were overtaken near Woodyate's-Inn by a thunder ſtorm, in which he ſaw ſeveral ſtrange and diſmal ſpectres, particularly one in the appearance of a female, to which he made up, when it inſtantly ſunk into the earth, and a large ſtone roſe up in its place; that the ſtones rolled upon the ground before him, and often came daſhing againſt his feet. Sheppard corroborated this part of the ſtory, ſo far as relates to the horror of the unhappy man. He perſiſting in the truth of his confeſſion, was committed to the town jail, and will take his trial at the enſuing Huntingdon aſſizes.

Muſical Feſtival in Weſtminſter Abbey.

At the firſt day's performance of the Muſical Feſtival, (May 31) more than 2600 perſons were preſent, and the choir, including muſic, conſiſted of 640 hands. The preſence of their Majeſties, with the Princeſs Royal, Princeſs Elizabeth, two other of the Princeſſes, and three Princes, accompanied by the Prince of Mecklenburgh, and a numerous retinue, formed a moſt ſplendid appearance.

The ſecond day's performance, Saturday June 3, was better attended, if poſſible, than the firſt.

Tueſday, June 6, the ſacred Oratorio of the Meſſiah was performed before a company equally numerous and brilliant with any of the former days. And on Thurſday, June 8, the muſic of the ſecond day's performance, (the Oratorio of Iſrael in Egypt) was repeated by command of his Majeſty.

The muſical feſtivals in Weſtminſter-Abbey have this year realized 12,3261. 7s.

Hugh Duke of Northumberland. His Grace was the son of Langdale Smithson, Esq. and Philadelphia, daughter to W. Reveley, of Newby in Yorkshire, Esq. Upon the death of his grandfather (Sir Hugh Smithson, of Stanwick, Bart.), which happened in the year 1729, he succeeded to the title of Baronet, and to his grandfather's estate; and upon the death of his relation, Hugh Smithson, of Tottenham, Esq. he came into the possession of other estates in Yorkshire and Middlesex; and also succeeded his relation as Knight of the Shire for the County of Middlesex, which he represented in three Parliaments. Upon the death of his father-in-law Algernon Duke of Somerset, whose daughter he had married, he succeeded to the title of Earl of Northumberland, (upon his daughter's marriage) with the remainder to her husband, and their issue, after the Duke's death.—The reason of his creation was as follows:—

The Duke's mother (whose third husband was the Duke's father) was daughter and sole heiress of Joceline, the last Earl of Northumberland, which title was become extinct. Being so great an heiress, she was married three times while a minor; first, to the Earl of Ogle, who died a short time after, leaving no issue. She was next married to Thomas Thynne, of Longleate, in Wilts, Esq. but he was assassinated in Pall-Mall, by some ruffians, hired by Count Conigsmark, whose object was to marry the widow. Her third husband was the Duke of Somerset, and she was still a minor, as was also the Duke, by whom she had the above Algernon; who succeeded his father, as Duke of Somerset, and possessed all the Percy estates.—He married Miss Thynne, grand-daughter of the first Lord Weymouth; and by her had one son, and one daughter. The son died unmarried; and the daughter married, in 1740, the above-mentioned Sir Hugh Smithson, the late Duke of Northumberland

The title of Somerset going to another branch of the Seymour family, the title of Northumberland was revived to the Duke's daughter, in consideration of her descent from the daughter of Joceline, the last Earl of Northumberland. The Percy estate also settled in her, together with several baronies, such as Percy, Lucy, Poynings, Fitz-Payne, Bryan, &c.

The Duke of Somerset dying in 1750, Sir H. Smithson immediately took his seat in the House of Lords, as Earl of Northumberland. In 1752 he was appointed one of the Lords of the Bed-chamber to the late King In 1757 he was installed a Knight o fthe Garter, at Windsor.—In 1762, he was appointed Lord Chamberlain to the Queen, and a Privy Counsellor; also Lord Lieutenant of the Counties of Middlesex and Northumberland. In 1763, he was appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. In 1766, he was created Duke of Northumberland. In 1778, his Grace was appointed Maſter of the Horſe, which he reſigned in 1781.

On the 5th of December, 1776, died the late Ducheſs of Northumberland. It was her birth-day; and ſhe was interred in her family vault, in St. Nicholas's Chapel, Weſtminſter-Abbey. She had completed her 60th year.

They had two ſons and one daughter, viz.

1. Hugh E. Percy, now Duke of Northumberland; born Auguſt 14, 1742; firſt married to Lady Anne, third daughter of the E. of Bute, by whom he had no iſſue, and from whom he was divorced in 1779. His Lordſhip married again in May 1779, Miſs Frances Julia Burrell, now Ducheſs of Northumberland, third daughter of the late Peter Burrell, of Beckenham, in Kent, Eſq.

2. Lord Algernon Percy, who, in conſequence of his father, the late Duke, having been created Lord Lovaine, Baron of Alnwick, in 1784, with the remainder to his ſecond ſon, is now a Peer of Great Britain, by that title, and makes a vacancy of Member for the County of Northumberland. His Lordſhip was born January 21, 1750, and married in June, 1775, to Miſs Iſabella Suſanna Burrell, ſecond daughter of the above-mentioned Peter Burrell, Eſq.

3. Lady Elizabeth, born in 1744, and died in 1761. She was buried in St. Nicholas's Chapel, Weſtminſter Abbey.

The late Duke was alſo Preſident of Middleſex Hoſpital, and Weſtminſter Diſpenſary; a Vice-Preſident of the Small-pox Hoſpital, and a Truſtee of the Britiſh Muſeum. He had no places at Court, having reſigned the laſt he held in 1781.
